EDUCATION IN THE TERRITORY OF HAWAII

EXTRACTS FROM THE REPORT
OF THE COMMISSIONER OF THE TERRITORY.

Brief History of Work Here Together With Valuable Statistical Information on Progress of Schools.

[Staff Correspondence The Republican.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—The annual report of the Commissioner of Education to the Secretary of the Interior, which was made public here yesterday, contains the following on education matters in the Territory of Hawaii:

It appears that the first missionaries in Hawaii in 1820 taught the natives the alphabet and many of the latter learned to read English before their own language was reduced to written form. After this was effected, before the end of 1824, 2,000 people had learned to read in their own languages and a system of schools was extending over the islands, the people were eager to learn reading and writing and at length nearly the whole population went to school. After this early enthusiasm had exhausted itself, in 1831 a high school was organized for training teachers. This was the Lahainaluna seminary, which is still in existence. Hilo boarding school for boys dates from 1836, as well as a boarding school for girls, and in 1839 an industrial school for boys was opened. Numerous mission schools have sprung up from time to time. Other institutions which have had influence are the Oahu Charity school (1833), which became finally the Honolulu High school, the principal function of which was to teach the half whites English; the Royal school (1840) for chiefs, which subsequently became a school for all Hawaiian boys and was the leading school for teaching English, and Punahou school (1841) for the children of missionaries, which was chartered as Oahu college in 1853. In 1839 the Roman Catholic missionaries established their system of schools. In 1840 the first comprehensive written laws were published and they included a compulsory school law with penalties for both parent and child for non-compliance with the law. The law provided also that no illiterate man should "hold office over any other man," nor could an illiterate man or woman marry. A minister of public instruction was among the functionaries provided by the new law.

In 1855 a board of education was established in place of the minister of public instruction, and in 1855 an inspector generalship of schools was created. In 1856 the reciprocity treaty with the United States ushered in the modern era of commercial progress. The influx of foreigners, especially of English-speaking ones, and the increase of business made English more and more the language of business, and the necessity of teaching it in the schools became more and more apparent. English, therefore, became the language of the two principal schools and its use soon spread to other schools. In 1884 there were 44 day schools, with 100 teachers, in which English was the language of instruction. In 1883 the St. Louis College for Boys was opened under the care of the Brothers of Mary, who had come to work in the Roman Catholic schools. This college had 243 students in 1884. At this time English was essentially the sole language of the private schools, employing 106 teachers, but was used in less than half the public or common schools. In 1888 all government schools were made free and the attendance rose to 8,050, the total number in both government and independent schools being 11,207. Since then nearly all the common schools, in which the Hawaiian language was the medium of instruction, have been converted into schools in which English alone is so employed, 98 per cent of the children being at present instructed by teachers who use English.

The following table shows the statistics of schools in 1899:

Number of Schools—
Public..... 143
Private..... 46
Total..... 189

Number of Teachers—
Male..... 113
Female..... 79
Total..... 192

Number of Pupils—
Male..... 5,041
Female..... 1,798
Total..... 6,839

Grand Total—
Teachers..... 544
Pupils..... 15,499

Of the 15,499 pupils, 5,045 were Hawaiian, 2,721 part Hawaiian, 601 American, 213 British, 337 German, 3,883 Portuguese, 84 Scandinavian, 1,141 Japanese, 1,314 Chinese, 30 South Sea Islanders and 124 other foreigners. Each nationality had its own teacher.

The expenditures for the two years ending December 31, 1899, were $375,353.

London is Interested.
NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—London business circles are keenly interested in the American contest, says the Tribune's correspondent. Business in the street and on the stock exchange is virtually suspended until the decision of the American electorate can be known on the questions affecting the industrial interests of the world.

Photograph the Baby.
Have you had a photo taken of baby? That's the question every mother is interested in. Baby is baby only once in a lifetime and what parent does not cherish the memory of his happy, care-free days? Then perhaps unkind fate has something sinister in store for him, who knows? Have a photo of baby by all means and don't put it off.

Some men wear just what they please; others wear what other men affect. There is a certain style which most men regard as proper, and one must be independently rich or hopelessly poor to utterly ignore the dictates of fashion. One great point about our clothing which ought to appeal to every man who would be well dressed is that it is so well made and so entirely in accord with the right fashion without being costly.

It has all the merchant tailor's distinctiveness; is, in fact, tailor-made; but is much less expensive than the so-called custom-made apparel.

SUSPENDERS

The top notch of excellence, the low water mark in prices; that's the way it is in our splendid furnishing department.
